

Hobo Audio is a brand-spankin' new state-of-the-art audio facility located in the heart of Manhattan. Their services include recording, editing, mixing, sound design and music for radio, television, and Internet audio production.

Hobo's studios feature top-of-the-line gear, including Pro Tools HD 5.1 surround sound systems and hi-definition plasma displays. They have an incredibly knowledgeable and courteous staff, a comfortable lounge (with video games), a great DVD collection, and a pot of delicious coffee that's always full- what more could you ask for? Seriously.

Before founding Hobo Audio, Howard Bowler was a Vice President at Grey Worldwide and manager of their in-house post facility.

In addition to his advertising post work, Howard wrote and produced music for a variety of major record labels. His efforts produced a top 40 single and various charting dance records. He was also part of a team at AT&T that developed audio for interactive TV projects.

Hobo Audio clients include Bank of America, Downy, agencies BBDO and Grey, and TV shows Easy Entertaining with Michael Chiarello, and Hip Hop Hold 'Em. We offer creative solutions, great quality audio and trouble free sessions. Give us a call or come and visit. We will be happy to show you around.
